The FARMERS CORNER

By RALPH H. TAYLOR
Executive Secretary
Agricultural Council
of California

If California farmers suddenly signed an air-tight agreement to boycott every retail merchant who handled union-made goods — not because they had any quarrel with retail merchants, but simply because they were involved in a dispute with some of the labor unions — the resultant furore would make Page 1 headlines all over the nation.

Labor leaders would bitterly denounce the farmers as "Fascists."

Merchants, caught in the middle of the cross-fire, would protest that they were threatened with ruin by reason of a quarrel in which they had taken no part and had no interest.

And the Labor Department in Washington would probably condemn the boycott as illegal and un-American.

California farmers, of course, haven't boycotted stores which handle union-made goods, nor are they likely to do so.

On the other hand, labor unions have repeatedly resorted to the "secondary boycott" against California farmers and the term "hot cargo" has become commonplace in news headlines.

The question of outlawing the vicious "secondary boycott" and "hot cargo" provisions is now pending before the State Legislature and it will be interesting to see just how the lawmakers face the issue. If the situation were reversed, the farmers were employing the "secondary boycott" in an attempt to break labor unionism, there would be little doubt of the outcome. There would be such a hue and cry against the practice that the vote would be virtually unanimous. And farmers will watch with interest to learn whether their rights will be championed with equal vigilance.

There are two bills to outlaw the "secondary boycott," which farmers should note and keep tab on. They are Senate Bill 877, by Senator Gordon and two others, and Assembly Bill 1666, by Assemblymen Millington and Phillips.

The two bills declare use of the "secondary boycott" and "hot cargo" weapons unlawful.

"Hot cargo" is defined to include any combination or agreement resulting in a refusal by employees to handle goods or perform services for their employer, because of a dispute between some other employer and his employees or a labor organization.

"Secondary boycott" is defined to include any combination or agreement, (1) to cease performing services for any employer, or (2) to cause any employee to cease performing such services, or (3) to cause any loss or injury to such employer, or (4) to cause any loss or injury to his employees for the purpose of inducing or compelling the employer to refrain (1) from doing business with another employer or (2) from handling the products of such other employer, because of a dispute between the latter employer and his employees or a labor organization.

Under the bills now pending, combinations or agreements to induce violation of the statute or to injure anyone refusing to violate the statute, are also outlawed.

If these bills are not enacted, any California farmer, at any time, may be threatened with the loss of his entire crop, and his whole year's income, if he doesn't knuckle-under to some city labor boss who has the power to declare his crop "hot cargo." For under the existing law, and recent court interpretations, labor can picket and boycott any farm, anywhere, anytime, for any reason, or for no reason at all. That intolerable conditions puts the farmer, who feeds and clothes the nation, at the mercy of every labor racketeer in the country. It gives labor unions the power to bulge and bleed the farming industry.

Every farmer who values his right to stay in business, and who believes he is just as entitled to his right to earn a living as the worker who belongs to a union, should get in touch with his legislators and advise them of his attitude. And when the vote is finally taken he should keep a record of how his local lawmakers voted—for future reference.

There is no doubt, in this writer's opinion, of how the people of California would vote on this question if it were presented to them, for the voters, in most instances, are quick to crack down on unfairness and discrimination. The "second-

ROAD OPENING CELEBRATED

Forest Service Reports
Present Situation As Regards Meyers Grade

While a winter sports frolic at Echo Lake Sunday celebrated the opening of U. S. Route 50 across the summit, and the recent reorganization of the Highway 50 Association was reviewed in the Sacramento press, a report was heard in road circles to the effect that the state Department of Public Works is desirous of proceeding with the improvement of the lower section of Meyers Grade.

This report was accompanied by another report which said that the Forest Service is unwilling to proceed with the improvement, the inference being that but for the Forest Service, the second half of the Meyers Grade improvement might be undertaken in the very near future.

It is generally understood among those who have been keeping in touch with the development of U. S. Route 50, that the Forest Service has spent nearly $2,000,000 of Forest Highway funds in the development of the route.

The amount of state funds spent on the road could not be immediately learned.

It is also generally understood that the Forest Service and the state highway officials confer from time to time on highway building plans as the subject relates to the development of state highways through federal forest lands.

Such a conference was held in October and in response to the report relative to the improvement of the lower half of Meyers Grade, the Forest Service reports that a continuation of the Meyers Grade improvement is being considered.

COUNTIES JOIN TO PRESENT TAX CLAIMS

Association In All Western States Renews Stand Voiced
Years Ago By Chas. E. Hand

A movement is well under way among counties of six western states, and is being extended to include counties of the eleven western states, to renew the plea to Congress for an equitable return to the counties in lieu of the taxes they are denied on lands in national forests or national parks.

The contention of the movement is almost identical to that expressed in the plan fostered many years ago by Charles E. Hand, of Placerville, and presented to Congress by Congressman Raker as House Resolution 11789 in the Second Session of the Sixty-Seventh Congress.

That measure provided: "That the United States Government hereby assumes subject to the conditions of this act or any subsequent act of Congress, the payment to the several states of sums of money equivalent to the amounts which such states would receive from the taxation of said lands of the United States within their respective borders if such lands were owned by individuals."

The movement now being pressed was organized recently at Salt Lake City, Utah, and is known as the Inter-State Association of Public Land Counties. Six states were represented in the organization meeting and Edwin J. Regan, dis-

The Rev. Harold Morehouse, pastor of the El Dorado County Federated Church, during the week made known his plans to terminate his local pastorate effective on June 1st.

His action is in keeping with the articles of federation of the church and with a rule adopted by the church some time ago that the term of the pastorate be for five years, alternating during each five-year period with a pastor of the Methodist and of the Presbyterian denomination.

Rev. Morehouse, who is completing five years in the local ministry, is a minister in the Presbyterian church.

He indicated during the week that an announcement of his plans probably will be presented to the congregation of the church on Sunday, during his absence from the pulpit. Rev. Morehouse will be conducting services elsewhere on Sunday and the Sunday morning service at the Federated Church will be conducted by the Rev. Irvine Askins, OCC chaplain in this district.

Rev. Morehouse came to El Dorado County from the El River parish, where his headquarters were at Garberville. He is a member of the Lions club, a war veteran and a member and the chaplain of El Dorado Post No. 119, American Legion.

ROME (UP)—The Giornale D'Italia, edited by Virginio Gayda, Premier Benito Mussolini's spokesman, today charged Great Britain had fomented Yugoslavia's coup d'etat.

This was the first admission by a responsible Axis source that the Yugoslavia coup was directed against Axis interests.

Earlier word had been circulated in Rome by Yugoslav quarters that the new government contained many diplomatic leaders and friends of Britain, but that Yugoslavia's adherence to the tri-power pact would be recognized as an accomplished fact.

Government's Stand Toward Defense Labor Strikes May Be Shown In Test Case

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UP)—CIO leaders refused today to call off their strike against the Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing Company, and to return to production lines immediately as ordered by government officials in a drastic move to end a 65-day stalemate on vital defense production.

PITTSBURGH, (UP)—CIO President Philip Murray today challenged the right of Defense Director W. S. Knudsen and Navy Secretary Frank Knox to order production resumed at the strike-bound Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing Co., Milwaukee.

Workers Recalled

CHICAGO, (UP)—Max Babb, president of the Allis-Chalmers Corporation, announced today that workers were being called back to start reopening the West Allis, Wis., plant for vital defense work starting this afternoon.

Home Guards Urged

WASHINGTON, (UP)—Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson today urged states to speed up the formation of home guard units which would be available for use in event of serious labor disturbances or other civil conditions that might retard the defense program.

He reiterated "steps must be taken to reduce delays on defense orders caused by strikes. He did not say specifically whether the government planned to follow up its "order" for resumption of work at the Allis-Chalmers plant with similar action regarding other plants where defense work is being held up.

The Allis-Chalmers case was regarded as a supreme test of the government's ability to cut through mediation efforts and get work resumed on vital orders. If the request by Secretary of Navy Frank Knox and production Director William S. Knudsen for resumption of work fails to bring the desired results, the government appeared to have no alternative but to take over the plant.

Miss Margaret Kelley was among those in town Thursday from Kel-sey.

CHAPTER XXXV
"Listen, Vera!" Jim said tensely. "Strade must have some caches of munitions, in or near Cochilla, besides that warehouse we destroyed. Do you know where they are? If we could get information like that to the government forces before the revolution breaks, and they raided and seized the arsenals, they could hamper Strade considerably!"

Vera looked blank. "But I do not know where they are. The only one I knew about was the warehouse."

"Or do you know anything about his plan of campaign?" Jim urged. "He must have things pretty well organized — particularly here in Cochilla, where the revolutionists will have to lie low until the forces from the interior get here. Isn't there any information at all you can give us that might help the revolutionists?"

"No-o-o," Vera said slowly, thoughtfully. "I know where he keeps his important papers. There might be an outline of his plans there—but—"

"Where's that?" Jim cut in eagerly, clutching her arm.

"In the safe in his office."

"Do you know the combination?"

"Yes—I do."

Jim was now beside himself with excitement. "Do you think we could break into the office — tonight — after I get out of here?"

"I don't know. Perhaps. But..."

Jim turned quickly to Zach and Don Jose, who had been listening with bated breath to this conversation.

"Strade is still in the interior, isn't he?"

"The last I heard, he was," said Zach.

Jim turned back to Vera. "Look — are you game to take me to his office tonight, and try with me to break in and steal those papers?"

Vera hesitated, but Jim's excitement and enthusiasm were contagious.

"Yes, Jim!" she suddenly decided. "I will!"

That night, Jim's release in the custody of Zach and Don Jose was quietly accomplished. The two old men and Vera were awaiting him at the exit of the prison when the head jailer slipped him out.

A few minutes later, they were hurrying away down the dark street.

"Here!" said Zach, handing Jim a revolver and flashlight. "You may need these!"

It had been agreed that Jim and Vera alone would attempt the raid on Strade's office, but Zach and Don Jose were to accompany them to the vicinity of the place. They went through a series of back streets until they reached a shabby section of town near the waterfront. When they came to the corner of the dark block of ramshackle buildings in which Strade's office was located, Zach and Don Jose said they would wait there.

Vera led Jim halfway down the block, then into a narrow passageway between two buildings.

"This one is it," she whispered, indicating one of the buildings.

She had told Jim there was a back door with a crude lock which would probably be their best bet. She was right. After a little work on the lock with a hairpin, they got the door open.

"That was easy!" muttered Jim, jubilant over this initial success. He drew his gun as they stepped inside. Vera took hold of his arm and, groping through the darkness, guided him down a corridor to the doorway of a room.

"Strade's private office," she whispered.

She took the flashlight from his hip pocket, switched it on and, stepping into the office, threw the beam of light on an old-fashioned iron safe in a corner.

Jim watched breathlessly as she knelt beside it and twisted the dial. Then, she grasped the handle, turned it, and pulled the safe door open.

Presently, she had a mass of papers on the floor, was spreading them out, playing the flashlight over them.

"Look, Jim! Here is what you want, I think!"

Jim excitedly knelt beside her. He spent several minutes examining the papers.

"Right!" he said, exultation in his voice. "The whole layout! His whole plan of attack... the location of his arms caches... everything! We must get these to the government at once..."

At that instant, the room light suddenly flared on.

Vera screamed, as she and Jim whirled to find Strade standing in the doorway, a leveled pistol in his hand...

JIM'S eyes instantly flew to his own gun, lying on the floor, where, in the excitement of looking over the papers, he had absent-mindedly laid it.

"Stand up!" Strade ordered quickly. "Reach for the ceiling!"

Slowly, Jim and Vera stood erect and raised their hands.

"Kick that gun over here!" Strade grated.

Reluctantly, hopelessly, Jim did so. Strade, still keeping them covered, warily knelt and picked it up, then stood erect again.

"What a pleasant surprise," he said suavely, "to return to town, walk into my office, and find the very two people I want!"

Jim and Vera remained silent.

"And I've got you where I want you this time!" Strade continued, his voice turning cold and hard. His eyes gleamed malignantly as he looked at Jim. "You can't talk your way out of this hole! So you were a popular hero, were you — and if I dared to harm you, the people would mob me, eh?" His thin lips drew back in a sneer. "How about that now? Things aren't quite the same, are they? The people are now ready to mob you! And if I kill you to save them the trouble, I'll be the popular hero!"

Vera shivered, and edged closer to Jim.

"Stand still!" Strade snarled at her. "Don't think you can save him by trying to get in front of him! The instant you move, I'll shoot him down! And if you move," he told Jim, "I'll shoot her!"

He took a couple of steps into the room, and watched them sharply for a moment. Then, he spoke again, addressing Jim.

"I can't make up my mind," he said slowly, as though carefully weighing a problem, "whether to save you for the mob, or to kill you now. But I believe now is the time. You see... I want to give you the pleasure of seeing you die! I'm sure she'd enjoy it!"

Vera moaned and swayed a little. Jim turned his head a fraction of an inch. Beads of perspiration stood out on his forehead.

"Steady, Vera..." he muttered. "It doesn't matter... We all have to die sometime, you know. It might as well be now for me."

Strade sneered. "Philosophical in the face of death, eh? It's just as well — for you have only one moment longer to live..."

He took careful aim at Jim's head.

Curbing Kickers

How to Cure Children of This Habit

By GARRY CLEVELAND MYERS, Ph.D.

Some children under ten or twelve have a bad habit of kicking other children, especially younger, weaker children, when quarreling with them. These children will kick almost any person in any part of the body, at the slightest provocation. Kicking is hazardous and sometimes causes serious injuries, especially kicking at the end of the spine, in the stomach or other less guarded parts of the anatomy.

My fellow parent, train your child early never to kick, even in self-defense. The first time your tot kicks you or any one else, seize him, and give him a spanking. Do this every time he kicks. Once he has learned to stay put, punish him by making him sit in a chair and do absolutely nothing for thirty minutes. If he attempts to leave the chair without permission before the time is up, give him a spanking which will be effective.

Self-Defense

But if at any age another child assails your child who in turn uses his bare hands in self-defense, approve your child for his courage. Some children under ten or twelve need to be taught to fight in self-defense, taught to ward off a blow and protect themselves.

Yet your child should learn early and permanently that he must never fight by kicking, biting, scratching, throwing things or using sticks, stones or other weapons.

Teachers, as well as parents, should be exacting in these matters. They might explain to the child, in quiet moments, some facts about the hazards and cowardice of kicking, etc. Some children while playing will run after one another with sharp sticks and throw stones. This is dangerous.

BB Guns and Bow and Arrow

Then there is the BB gun. No child not strictly supervised by his parents should be allowed to have one. With this gun the child is a nuisance to all other children near him. Some children have lost an eye from the stray BB gun shot fired by another child. I wish BB guns were outlawed and parents whose children use these guns among other children were heavily fined. Parents who really care about the welfare of their neighbor's children won't put a BB gun into the hands of their own children, except perhaps in an open country place under strict adult supervision.

Neither will parents who care about the safety of other children allow their own children to play unsupervised with bow and arrow. About the worst citizen I can imagine in any community is the parent who allows his child to be a constant known menace to the safety of other children of the community. The pity of it is that some of the most perilous pests among runabouts in a neighborhood have parents who, as measured by the usual standards, are among the influential citizens of that community. With good habits and ideals of citizenship themselves, all too many parents have failed to bring up their own child in the alphabet of restraint and regard for the rights of others.

You may have a copy of my magazine reprint, "Do you spank your child?" by writing me at 235 East 46th Street, N. Y. City, enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp in it.

Solving Parent Problems

Q. Why does a boy five years of age persist in hurting and being hurt with his brother who is one and one-half years of age?

A. Because the baby gets so much of the attention which he for years enjoyed alone. Many a child of five wishes there were no baby brother or sister.

Q. Would you advocate a curfew law for each town and city?

A. No; but one for each home. Parents who really care have a curfew law which they enforce. Their growing children automatically come into the house when the street lights are turned on.

Aid To Britain Bill Signed

80,000 planes by the 1943 summer, great fleets of merchant ships and armaments the quantity of which exceeded the imagination only a few months ago.
Not a single change was made in the appropriation during its rapid legislative course. All attempts to amend it were rejected by large majorities in the house and no attempt to change it was made in the senate.
Director William S. Knudsen of the office of production management told congress this measure would enable America to coordinate her armament program with that of Britain and that when this great program gets fully under way within a few months this nation would be producing war equipment twice as fast as Germany; that 3,000,000 more men would be at work by fall, making a total reemployment for the year at 5,000,000.

Jugoslavians In Revolt

Britain, anti-Nazi army leaders and cabinet ministers who a few days ago quit their posts in bitter resentment at the deal with Hitler.
There was no direct word from Belgrade regarding the coup and no indirect word as to the plans of Yugoslavia's new rulers. Thus, it could not be said flatly that they would throw the Axis pact into disarray.
What the coup would mean in military terms was not yet clear.
Germany suddenly found itself with 500,000 men, more or less, in Bulgaria and Rumania with a hostile nation on her long flank from south Germany to the Greek border.
Yugoslavia's army, between 675,000 and 1,000,000 men, stands mobilized and ready for action if Hitler decides to cut the Gordian knot of his dilemma by releasing his Panzer divisions in an attempt to win in Yugoslavia by force of arms what Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop failed to achieve by power diplomacy.
The sudden developments raised the question whether there was more substance than had been indicated previously in reports that Russia was playing an undercover game to encourage Yugoslav resistance.
The Yugoslav coup was carried out by elements for the most part friendly to Russia as well as to Britain.
Of possible interest in the light of negotiations was a diplomatic report from Vichy which said—without confirmation—that in event of German violation of the Yugoslav frontier Russia would be compelled to re-examine her relations with Germany.
Istanbul made a passing reference which indicated British troops may be in Turkey as well as in Greece and said that German troops in the Bulgarian territory are talking about a campaign in Africa and against the Suez Canal.
There was a peculiar flare-up in Rumania where for the second successive day Gen. Ion Antonescu delivered a speech advancing Rumanian demands for restoration of at least some of the territory ceded last fall to Hungary under Nazi orders.

ROAD OPENING CELEBRATED

provement was not considered for the present year by the Regional Forester at the October conference, he believing that forest highway funds this year should be spent on other projects.
Roads boosters during the week pointed out that Congress is currently considering appropriations to various states for the building of military highways, and since U. S. Route 50 is reported to be a "secondary military road," there was some hope among roads enthusiasts that funds for the second Meyers Grade improvement may be available from that source.

WHAT'S WHAT AT A GLANCE

WASHINGTON - WORLD

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Columnist

BERLIN AND Rome, as our state department interprets the news from these two supposedly strictly censored sources, are furnishing the most convincing of all proofs that things are going badly with the European Axis.
From Berlin recently came the information that Herr Hitler has remorselessly squelched disorders in Holland. Oh, he doubts less his squelched "em."

but his announcement that he's done so is taken as an admission from a first-class authority that there were Dutch disorders that required squelching. And it was as good an authority as Signor Mussolini, who testified that the Fascists were a lot worse licked in northern Africa than even the British said they were.
Adolf and Benito ought to know, if anybody.
Benito's revelation was naive to the point of being funny. It evidently had leaked out in Italy itself that Il Duce's forces were on the run on the southern side of the Mediterranean, and it appears that the Italians, at home, were beginning to mutter that he'd neglected to send enough of 'em into that field of activity or to keep 'em supplied adequately. Seemingly Benito was stung by these criticisms; so he made that speech of a few days ago, to the effect that his African military outfit was, too, a great plenty more numerous and better equipped than Italy and the rest of the world had given it credit for being. Well, if it was undermanned and skimpily armed it had some excuse for being licked. But, if not, as he asserted, it hadn't even that excuse for taking its licking. Ditto Albania. Benito hotly denied that the Italians there were knocked into a cocked hat by the Greeks due to any failure of his own to send enough of 'em across the Adriatic or to furnish 'em with sufficient guns, munitions and aviation; they simply have been trounced by superior Greek fighting ability—though Benito didn't put it quite that way.

Not His Fault!
The nub of it is that, yes, they've the town had been burned only to spring up again, and many other facts that have happened during her long and eventful life. J. R. Johnson, of the P. G. & E. at Auburn gave a very interesting talk on electricity. The speeches were followed by the band. Supervisor William Breedlove, who was instrumental in the installing of the lights was highly lauded. The program ended with moving pictures including Walt Disney's cartoon, "Life in the Attic," and a splendid movie of the area of the high power line of electricity. About 500 people partook of a lunch of sandwiches, doughnuts, pickles, olives and coffee. An orchestra was provided and dancing was enjoyed by the young people for a few hours.

Among those who saw from a distance who were here for the celebration were George Flursburtz, of Oakland, Mrs. Berriman, Doris Berriman and Mr. and Mrs. Haaler, of Sacramento; Mr. and Mrs. D. Larkey and children, E. G. Cheek, Richmond; Mr. and Mrs. E. Hotchkiss, Grass Valley, Mr. and Mrs. Joe McNeil, Vallejo, and Walter Writson, Oakland.

Mr. and Mrs. Leo A. French left last week for Pino Grande where they expect to spend the summer.
Mrs. Anna May Sagner and Miss Mollie Nathlich were shopping in Auburn Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. I. Martin celebrated the birthdays of Mr. Martin and their daughter, Mrs. Oliver Porter Sunday, March 23, with a family dinner. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Martin, Betty Martin, Mr. and Mrs. Bud Porter, and Mr. and Mrs. Irving Martin and little son.

W. E. Everson, justice of the peace of Elk Grove, age 87, formerly a mining man of this district, passed away at his home Friday, March 21 following a heart attack. He is believed to be the last of the pallbearers for James W. Marshall, discoverer of gold. He was a prominent member of the I. O. O. F. A son, Chas. Everson is the sole survivor.

The firemen's card party held on Friday night had 12 tables. Those who held high scores were Mrs. H. Reaside, Mrs. C. Simmons, Mrs. Connors, Mrs. Youngson, Mrs. Presley, Mrs. Fowler, Mrs. Case, Booby prize went to Mr. and Mrs. F. McCaslin, Door prize to Lester Heindel.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Gimlet left last week for Imperial Valley where they will be employed during the fruit and vegetable season.

Mrs. Florence Smith and her mother, Mrs. Guger of Vallejo, who is been licked, but it wasn't his fault. The inference drawn from Adolf's reports is that he's conquered more territory than he's going to be able to keep long under his thumb.

The Dutch already are so ugly, according to his own account, that he has had to declare German army rule throughout all the northern Netherlands. Presumably it's effective there at present, but it must be a nuisance to him to have so much hostility sizzling that he has to sit on it with a big military force to prevent it from going on the rampage under him.

And of course there are other areas for him to worry about. Norway's reported to be as near to an anti-Nazi uprising as it dares to be.

France certainly won't stay beaten any longer than it has to. It stands to reason that Denmark, Poland and Belgium can't but be ripe for revolt at the first favorable opportunity. The Balkans also are only as pro-German as they're afraid to be otherwise.

Now, Herr Hitler can concentrate on one little spot, like northern Holland, and suppress its anti-Naziism, unquestionably.

But suppose Adolf were to have uprisings break out against him in France, Holland, Belgium, Poland, Denmark and Norway about simultaneously, plus Britain on his hands, maybe the Balkans and Turkey, too, and with Russia's unreliability to reckon with? Wouldn't all that keep him pretty busy?

Japan Is Far Off
Italy's a broken reed to him. And Japan's too far away to help him in Europe.

Just how solidly Germany itself is behind the Fuehrer is something of a problem here. That it's strongly and predominantly so isn't questioned. Nevertheless there are vague rumors of a bit of domestic discontent with him, the Fuehrerland traditionally has its democrats. There are observers who think they might manifest themselves quite formidably if he runs into serious trouble, giving them a chance to speak above a whisper without being instantly GESPAPPE.

Anyway, Washington's diplomatic strategists calculate that Herr Hitler and Signor Mussolini (the former with his news from Holland and the latter with his north African and Albanian speech) have been a couple of their most enlightening informants lately.

visiting here, spent Monday in Placerville.
Sartor J. Francis, age 57 years, died late Friday afternoon, March 21, 1941, at the Placerville Sanatorium where he had been taken the week before to receive special treatment for a serious kidney ailment. Mr. Francis was the son of the late Alex A. Francis and Florinda Francis, pioneers of the early days. He spent his entire life here with the exception of a few months he and his family resided in Oakland several years ago. He operated a butcher shop here for many years. He was a prominent member of the Odd Fellows, Rebekahs, Native Sons and Eagles lodges.

Funeral services were held in the M. E. Church Tuesday at 2 p. m. with the Rev. Elwin Castledine, Rector of the Placerville Episcopal Church officiating. It was one of the largest funerals held here in several years. The church was completely banked with beautiful floral pieces his legion of friends brought attesting the respect and esteem of the friends who came from nearly every part of the county. He leaves to mourn the loss of a loving husband and father his wife, Mrs. Ethel Francis, two daughters, Edith and Helen and one son, Elmer. He was the brother of Mrs. Beatrice Luce and Alex and Joe Francis, and many more distant relatives. Graveside services were conducted by the I. O. O. F. The pall bearers were R. O. Murdock, Loris Grover, William Breedlove, Victor Fornl, Lester Heindel and Arthur Nathlich.

Among the relatives and friends who came from a distance were: Mr. and Mrs. Dante Cordano, San Leandro, Mr. and Mrs. A. Roberts, Clarence Roberts, John Ampuro, Oakland, Urtel Francis, Vallejo, Mrs. Norman Strickland, Sacramento, Mrs. Louisa Geiger, Vallejo, Mrs. Lottie Sturman and Lionel Sturman, Sacramento.

"SPOTTER" ISN'T G-MAN
OROVILLE, (UP)—When Ray Patterson and family moved to town, Daughter Virginia told her playmates her father was a "spotter." The news spread like wildfire and residents were rejoicing in the protection that would be afforded them by the presence of a G-man in their midst, when it developed that a "spotter" is one who specializes in removing spots, which happens to be Patterson's business.

The FARMERS CORNER

by RALPH H. TAYLOR

Executive Secretary
Agricultural Council

any boycott," if the issue is submitted to the people, will be outlawed. But there should be no need to take the question to the people. The Legislature should prove to the farming people of California that it is just as quick to protect their rights, and their interests, as those of labor, or any other branch of the community.

At one of the recent legislative committee hearings in Sacramento on these bills, labor leaders arrogantly served notice on the Legislature that if the "secondary boycott" is outlawed they will still continue to use it. They bluntly stated that they will ignore any ban the Legislature may place on this outrageous practice. When any group in a democracy considers itself above the law—and openly declares its intention to flout the law—then certainly, the time has come to act. The Legislature should call that bluff. When the Legislature has outlawed the "secondary boycott," it will then be time for our courts to demonstrate equal courage—and enforce the law to the limit!

LOOMIS, REALTY BROKER, TO OPEN OFFICES IN PLACERVILLE

L. W. (Ren) Loomis, El Dorado county real estate and insurance broker who has maintained offices in El Dorado since taking over the business of W. C. R. Hoover in 1936, will be located after April 1st in Placerville in the Ivy Hotel Building at 597 Main Street.

The office quarters in the Ivy Hotel building are this week being renovated and put in shape by the owner, John Raffetto.

Mr. Loomis invites all of his old as well as new clients to call in and get acquainted with the location.

Mr. Loomis states that in arranging his new office quarters, space is being allowed for unusual mining displays, which will include sample specimens of ore from many of the mines and prospects of this and neighboring counties. This display is to supplement a larger exhibit, a 35-year collection, ore specimens and photographs from every continent of the world, gathered by W. C. R. Hoover of El Dorado.

"Since Placerville is the county seat of a county originally active in mining and an industry which is today rated as second place, I hope my mining display will be of interest to visitors, as well as local citizens," Mr. Loomis said.
